ABSTRACT

A rapid method and kit is provided for identifying the targets of biologically active small molecules to identify new drugs that are capable of specific therapeutic effects as well as to identify novel small molecules including agonists and antagonists that may bind selected targets.